The ladies, I presume, have no exalted idea of friend P. for his complimenthe considering it quite natural for them to ran against the gentlemen, merely to be winked at. I should think they would avoid winking at him, as he would sure ly make it public.

I cannot agree with P. that the man that makes the most noise is the man of most business; and I don't ask that the laboring man should have that elasticity to his gait that some of our counter hoppers have, but I ask that they should conform to each other's step. I cannot endorse the doctrine of P. in relation to waltzing, romping and dancing (in the open air) as beneficial to health, for these exercises are generally indulged in to excess, and in our moral village a more fashiopable exercise should be established. He should remember there are a great many of our young citirons who never indulge in that kind of exarcise.

scientific manner, and sincerely hope all persons will cultivate a taste for it. Hoping P. may profit by an observance of the above rules, and endeavor to obtain health by more moderate exercise than waltzing, romping and dancing, I temain as ever.
